Questions for the Northern Pacific.

At a meeting of the house committee on judiciary West today a resolution was offered by Representative McLeod of Iowa in which was embodied the substance of to the Northern Pacific railroad a series of interrogations concerning lands granted that company. The proposition caused an animated discussion in the committee and as it progressed argument became heated and quite exciting and before reaching a vote the committee adjourned until Thursday. On this morning the resolution was taken up for action and after further debate was adopted with the understanding that any member of the committee desiring to submit interrogations in addition to those presented by McCold may do so. A list of questions is to be sent to officers of the company to answer. According to the terms of the resolution the company may respond either in writing or through its attorney. The questions embodied in McCold's resolution are substantially as follows: What lands have been received by the company under the granting act? 2 What lands are earned? 3 What lands are sold? 4 What is the value of unearned lands? 5 How much roadway is completed? 6 What is the cost thereof? 7 How much roadway is uncompleted? 8 What is the probable cost thereof?

A Foolish Resolution.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The condition of strikers at Irondale who struck against wages ranging at from $1.50 to $2.00 per day is becoming pitiable. Their boarded reserve fund cannot last much longer. Many of them are actually suffering. They only grow more stubborn however, preferring to depend on the generosity of friends in other parts of the country. The Hyde Park authorities have given notice that they will not on any condition give the strikers any aid for which declaration the police will hold the Cabinet from A. Steel company responsible.

Allie Wills gave as her reason that her father lived with a shameless woman. Miss Ogilvie's reason was that she was an orphan and Mary Jones spoke the drug because the others did.

Situation Unchanged.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The situation of the freight handling strike is practically unchanged. CANADA.

In Favor of Chinese.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Special from Toronto: At the Methodist conference held here Rev John Crosby, from British Columbia, spoke pronouncedly in favor of the employment of Chinese in the work of constructing railroad. Said the railway and he deemed it a strong terms the policy of those who advocated their exclusion from Canada. The great national highway, he pointed out, should be constructed with all possible speed. The people of British Columbia were vitally interested in it and any needless delay on the part of the Dominion government would be injurious. Rev Mr. Crosby resented by them in the absence of sufficient white labor. There was nothing for it but to secure that of some other race in order to have the work of construction rapidly pushed forward. The Chinese were precisely the class of people for this undertaking, being steady and industrious and not sensible to the terms demanded for wages. A supprehension that their engagement would yield evil results. They would not remain in the country to be to competition. Positive labor that after earning up money would return to their own country.

Canadian Elections.

TORONTO, June 21.—All members of the late government are elected. Cities and towns of the various provinces have generally favored supporters of the national policy. Among the prominent members of opposition defeated, are Sir Richard Cartwright Sir Albert Smith and Mr Anglin. Independent Sir John McDonald's government will be sustained by a larger majority than prevailed in the last parliament.

TORONTO, June 21.—The Globe believes when full election returns are in the government majority will be reduced from 80 to below 60.

Severe Rain Storm

QUEBEC, June 22.—A terrible storm has occurred in Beauce. Rain came down in sheets swelling small streams and carrying away bridges over them, causing the larger rivers Chaudiere and Du Loup to overflow washing away all bridges from St. Joseph to Portage river 45 miles. House.

WASHINGTON, June 21.

During debate Townsend of Illinois created a sensation by charging that the measure embodies the job of an eastern firm interested in the proposed site of the capitol hill.

Rice of Massachusetts, Humphrey, Reed and others replied, and a scene of confusion unusual on the floor of the house was witnessed.

House went into committee of the whole on the bill to revise the laws relating to immigration.

White favored an amendment. He proposed to offer a resolution repealing the internal revenue system so far as it applies to the regulation of production and manufacture of tobacco.

Morrison of Illinois, spoke at some length in opposition to the amendment to remove the revenue taxes on manufactured tobacco.

Hatch, of Missouri advocated the proposed amendment allowing farmers and planters to sell tobacco of their own production without payment of special license.

Page likewise began announced they would vote against the amendment. The committee then rose.

A communication was received from the officers of the navy urging the age for retirement in the navy be not changed from 62 to 64 years referred.

The chairman's members thought it wiser to adopt the resolution providing for filling vacancies on the ticket by the state committee than to call a special convention. The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 23, 1882.

A GREAT VICTORY FOR A GREAT PRINCIPLE.

Once it was a general fashion to set up an image representing "party regularity," and to perform ceremonies before it. Exhortations to "stand by the party" had a wonderful power; few had the courage to refuse to join in the worship which the custom required, and the great juggernaut rolled on over unresisting if not entirely willing victims. Man was taught that his chief end was to "vote the regular ticket." The regular ticket represented the majesty of "the party," and party was at once infallible and omnipotent. The few who did not join in this belief were regarded with disfavor and held in distrust. He who talked of personal independence, who denounced party despotism and demanded to know what right any assemblage, association or faction had to dictate to him, or to set up their will over his own, was a troublesome citizen, and even a bad and disloyal one. To become a "bolter" was attended by forfeiture of the confidence of a large number of one's fellow men. It was bad indeed.

Yet under all this odium and obloquy THE OREGONIAN has for years been accustomed to express its approval of bolting. It has, when occasion seemed proper, encouraged bolting, and has always given bolters a respectful hearing. And the conviction has often been forced upon it that there was not bolting enough. It has not been able to see in party anything that men should be expected to adore or worship, and in consequence it has been denounced without stint for many years by the masters and followers of "the machine." Because it has rejected the claims of party regularity it has not been regarded as faithful to the requirements of good citizenship. But it still believes in bolting, and in general thinks bolting a good, sound and consistent principle of political action. If it has come short of its duty in anything, the fault lies in not having made bolting at all times its rule of regular politics.

But in spite of all lapses on the part of its advocates, bolting is making steady progress. It got a grand lift in this city on Monday last. Good seed had fallen upon fruitful soil, and the harvest was immense. They who had been accustomed to stickle for party regularity bolted en masse. The whole machine abandoned the regular ticket, and supported irregular nominations. It was highly gratifying to find among the bolters the chairman of the republican state central committee, the secretary of the said committee, the chairman of the republican county committee, the postmaster of the city, the district attorney, and all the sub-bosses, workers and whippers-in, whose business it has been from the time the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, to "whoop up" the regular ticket, to denounce bolters, and to discourse with a vehement eloquence upon the necessity of standing by the grand old party under all circumstances. On that day the born of the bolter was mightily exalted. It is not probable that so much was ever before done in a single day in this state to give bolting an established footing and permanent boom. Then the actors in this most encouraging and satisfying performance, two or three evenings later, got together under the leadership of the chairman of the state central committee, the district attorney and the postmaster of the city, repaired to the house of the successful candidate of the bolters, and there held a very proper jubilee over their achievement. THE OREGONIAN can only regret that it was not deemed a good enough advocate of the principle and practice of bolting to entitle it to an invitation. It is almost ashamed to confess its partial unfaithfulness to so excellent a rule of political action. But no one can be at all times on duty. Courage may not flag, but the best energy may become exhausted, or at least may require rest; yet THE OREGONIAN has the the satisfaction of knowing that the principle and practice it has so sedulously taught have been adopted by those at whose hands they had formerly met with nothing but indignity and condemnation, and that a great advantage has been scored for the bolt and the bolter.

It is moreover a fresh and impressive lesson. Every great and good cause finds at the proper time men who are ready to carry its banners. The original bolters were slumbering on their posts of duty, or for the moment were seeking diversion among the idols and images of party regularity. A noble cause was languishing; when at once the veteran rank-and-file of the regular camp, filled with an inspiration, seized the neglected standards and carried them on to victory. As a triumph of bolting it affords matter for rejoicing. It will serve, too, as a most excellent and inspiriting example. It has given bolting an impulse here, which will carry it with accumulating force into future elections. When party henchmen talk hereafter of the wrong of bolting and denounce it as a dangerous, not to say an infamous thing, we shall see skeptical figures applied in countless numbers to unbelieving noses; there will be the mockery of derisive laughter, with the pointed remark that party regularity is good with the professional managers only when they control the nominations, and that the sacred principle of bolting must never be left without advocates and defenders. Very likely THE OREGONIAN will be a humble soldier with this mighty army. As a child of conscience it must do penance and make restitution for its remissness on this recent occasion. Material to recruit from always exists in plenty. Even the machine managers bolt when there is nobody else to uphold the noble cause. But there will be no little embarrassment when the engineers of the machine try next to set it in motion. The dignity they suppose doth hedge it, they will find a pitiful thing to behold. Let it be set down for a prophecy that they will find sore difficulty in recovering the insignia and authority of party regularity which heretofore have been instrumonts of wondrous potency to conjure with in their hands. Once more let THE OREGONIAN express its satisfaction. It has not been laboring to exalt the bolter these ten years, in vain. The "regular organization" of the republican party is now with it in principle, and is even ahead of it in practice, while the democratic party scarcely follows the regular standards at all. The apotheosis of the long reviled and despised bolter has come!

GREED OF THE IRON MASTERS.

Even so strenuous a supporter of the "protective" system as the San Francisco Post admits that one of the anomalies of the system is brought out by the strike of the iron workers in the eastern states. While the products of our furnaces and foundries are protected over forty per cent, and the employers are crowded with orders at prices giving a profit in excess of the saving on duty, wages do not respond and the cost of living is increased. It follows, that while protection enriches the employer, it impoverishes the working classes. This fact cannot be controverted, and it furnishes an argument in favor of the regulation of wages by law as good as any ever presented for giving manufacturers profits through the tariff. Another point in this connection is not generally known. Last year the heavily protected iron masters imported 724,210 tons of iron ore from Europe and Canada, at a nominal duty of 57 cents per ton. The workingmen of New Jersey, through Mr. Hill, called the attention of the house of representatives to this by memorial last January, pointing out the injustice to them. The foreign ore, which exceeded the entire output of the state of New Jersey, was laid down at $2 84 per ton, at which price American miners say they cannot compete. When Mr. D. J. Morrell, of Pennsylvania, was questioned about this glaring inconsistency, he said, on behalf of himself and importing associates, that they "can't very well help themselves, for they are in the market as purchasers, and however much they may dislike the situation, they have got their stockholders behind them, and they would have to give a good reason for paying $3 or $4 a ton more than they were obliged to." Mr. Morrell is a large iron and steel manufacturer, and he, aided by Mr. Hewitt, who is equally interested in the iron trade fraternized, this sussion, to procure a remission of the duty on iron ore, while retaining it on manufactured steel and iron. These gentlemen did not care about American workingmen. What they wanted was a tariff which would add to their profits as manufacturers, and bring the fining interests of the country into competition with "the pauper labor of Europe." The whole scheme of protection is a game of greed, of which the above is a characteristic illustration.

A SOCIAL PARALLEL.

It is an interesting fact that bills have lately been pending in the British parliament which raise almost exactly the same questions as those which are now agitating the people of Ohio, and which threaten political revolution in that state, and in Indiana. A "Sunday closing bill," for instance, is a measure which has drawn upon itself the wrath of "the keepers of public houses," who denounce it as "an attempt to deprive worthy men of what is sacred to them," but which its friends advocate as a means "to put the sale of liquor upon a better footing." The bill places additional taxes upon the liquor traffic, which it also licenses, and it is a suggestive fact that those interested in the traffic are instructing their friends to vote at the next election "for the men who will promise to give them the greatest relief from taxation and legislative control." "Their sole aim," says a London paper, "is to put certain burdens shifted off from their own shoulders, on to the shoulders of other people," just as the saloon keepers of Ohio have thus far succeeded in doing.

It is to be noticed further that the English liquor dealers have remonstrated to parliament against the present price of licenses as being too high, and have demanded a reduction of the price, at the same time representing that the license fee paid should be graded according to the amount of business done. To this demand the following reply is made:

> It is a news and for the licensed victuallers somewhat dangerous theory to advance, that the value of their licenses is to be determined by the amount of their traffic. If that is to be the practice, then surely they ought now to be made to pay very much more than they did, say ten years ago, when a smaller amount of drink was consumed. And thus the argument based upon the amount of consumption, instead of supporting a reduction in the price of licences, is in favor of a much greater increase than that which Mr. Gladstone recently made, especially as the tendency now is to restrict the number of licenses, and thus to make more valuable those that remain.

The Locke bill—one of the measures which the Ohio legislature considered and rejected—which many thought involved the correct principle, graded the saloon tax according to the amount of traffic and consumption. It was therefore exposed to precisely the same objection here made to the demand of the English "victuallers," whose competition for the licenses granted even under the present high rates is so great, we are told "that for one granted, probably hundreds are refused or kept back simply because there is no hope for their being favorably entertained."

Another feature of the English situation bears a striking resemblance to that of Ohio, and is highly suggestive. "Brewing and distilling firms," we are told, "have acquired the proprietorship of large numbers of licensed houses, the tenants of which are granted leases, long or short, according to circumstances, and on the expiring of each lease, a payment more or less large has to be made for renewal." All this money, of course comes out of the public. The man who pays a large sum for a license under the guise of a payment for good will, must recoup himself by exacting large profits from his customers. Thus, under the present system, the public are taxed, and heavily taxed, for the benefit of individuals. Such are some of the beautiful results in England of monopoly of the retail liquor traffic in the hands of distillers and brewers.

To crown the parallel of the English with the Ohio situation, it is urged, as against any compromise of legislative power over the liquor traffic, "that the legislature should have perfect freedom in dealing with the subject," which is exactly what we are now contending for in this state. Society is too seriously affected by the liquor traffic to be able to afford to jeopardize or forfeit its control over that traffic.

There was no reason why religious services should not be held at the funeral of Jesse James, as Rev. William Harris, pastor of the First Baptist church of St. Joseph, seemed to intimate in his remarks at a meeting of New York Baptist ministers in New York recently. He said, that he declined to officiate, but a less scrupulous minister consented. Mr. Harris wholly mistakes the criticisms upon the ceremonies over the remains of the bandit when he intimates that it was improper for a minister to consent to officiate at the funeral. The absurd feature of the funeral was the singing of the hymns appropriate for the burial of a saint, and the apparent assent of the minister to the sentiment of the dead outlaw's mother: "Jesse is better off in heaven than he would be here with us." It seems that Jesse James was not a Baptist, although his father was a Baptist minister, but the exercises at his funeral would not have needed to be different if held over the remains of one of the worthiest members of the Baptist church in St. Joseph.

The Boston Sunday Budget discloses how monumental was the impudence of Oscar Wilde, in forcing himself on distinguished authors in its neighborhood, when it says: "A pleasant thing to remember of Mr. Oscar Wilde, is that he forced himself into Mr. Longfellow's presence after the poet had asked to be excused, and stayed until his host had to send for his daughters to relieve him from the task of entertaining the man into whose presence they had at first refused to enter.

The California democrats are slow about getting down to business. Hearst is ahead, Stoneman—who, it will be remembered, visited Oregon last year—closely follows, and there is a full field far in the rear. The result is "what no fellow can find out."

Brazil provides us with about $50,000,000 worth of coffee per annum, and we provide her, in return, with about $20,000 worth of our products. That is the way we have been cultivating our commerce.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 23, 1882.

CITY.

CRUISING THE "SEA VENTURE."—Captain Lauchlan man, of the German ship "Fritz," was brought before U. S. Commissioner Paul B. Beach yesterday to answer to the charge of bringing 19 more Chinamen than the American coasting law allows. The captain pleaded not guilty, but was held to answer before the United States court. In the light of past proceedings there can be no doubt of the result of the trial, and Captain Lauchlan will go away from Portland very much poorer before he sails for a poorer man. The California papers have had many words of compliment to pay the U. S. circuit court of Oregon, but have been unable to supply as good an example at the coast ports. The San Francisco Chronicle speaks of those traffickers in human flesh as "coolie tramps," and details their schemes for eluding the penalties which should be supposed upon every one of them. The Angler Head, which cleared for Portland from Hongkong, but made her port at San Francisco, brought a big cargo of passengers, and the Chronicle tells how the captain is trying to get out of paying any fines as follows: "A gang of Chinamen appeared on the steerage yesterday and went on making their work in the hold after ing the stanks to comply with the requirements of the law. The banks lately completed in the steerage are each five feet wide and six feet long; nor were they so contrived as that passengers lay parallel with the sides of the vessel. Deputy Collector Brown warned the officers of the steamer not to proceed with the work of alteration. The captain was not on board, and the work was not suspended for want of such an order. Mr. Brown learns—he can find no other way by which to reach the captain for the purpose—making the alterations before the official measurement of the vessel had been ascertained. For the irregular alterations of the banks the captain said the ship have already been made liable to a fine of $5 for each passenger. This is the first instance where an effort has been made to alter the legal accommodations of these coolie chests before measuring the vessel. It is strange to us we never attempted that little game in Portland.

LAST TO VOLUNTEER, FIRST TO DIE.—A gentleman who was in San Francisco when the ill-fated Rodgers started in search of the relics of Jeannette, related to an enterprising reporter yesterday, that Master C. F. Putnam, who was lost off South Head, St. Lawrence Bay, February 13, volunteered only sixteen hours before the sledge party left. The complement of officers had been made, but Master Halsey, one of the number, went off on a spree shortly before the sailing date and refused to sober up. At the last moment Putnam offered his services, permission was asked from Washington by telegraph and granted, and in two hours he was aboard the ship. Halsey was afterwards court martialed and punished.

THE DEPOT GROUNDS.—Work of filling the head of Couch's lake for the proposed Union passenger depot, will be commenced as soon as preparations can be made. Filling will be tedious and somewhat expensive. Earth will have to be brought either from the big cut, four miles south on the west side road, or from the foot hills along the line of the Kalama branch, or from the bluff back of the company's grounds below Albina, by trains and ferry. One year will probably be required to finish the work of filling. Soundings and borings for the proposed bridge across the Willamette, will be commenced next week.

THROWN FROM A BUGGY.—Yesterday afternoon, Harry Ketchum, of Roseburg, and W. S. Brackett, both sporting men, were driving and reached the corner of Fourth and Morrison as the west side train was coming in. The horse became frightened and Brackett jumped out, lines in hand, to catch him by the head. The animal wheeled suddenly throwing Ketchum heavily to the street. He received a very severe gash near the right knee and another under the chin. The injuries will confine him to his bed for several days, perhaps weeks.

TO TEST REAL EDUCATION.—Himes, the printer, announces that he will give a prize of $10 to the young lady graduate of this year's high school class, who can bake the best loaf of bread, and $5 to the one baking the second best loaf. Application may be made until Monday evening. The test will probably take place at Allsky & Kraemer's, and the committee on award will consist of two ladies and one gentleman, to be selected after all applications are received.

WOUND.—James Scott, formerly of this city, who was shot at Astoria, Sunday, the 11th inst., has grown worse and his condition is regarded as critical. His assailant, Carlson, has been placed under $5000 bonds. Investigation showed that Scott was simply passing Carlson's house on his way to the fishing company's mess house, that he had never visited the dwelling, and that he was not even acquainted with Mrs. Carlson.

CASE FOR THE GRAND JURY.—On complaint of Mrs. Eugene Collity, Mike McCoy was arrested and brought before Justice Davis yesterday, charged with indecent exposure of person. McCoy waived an examination and was held to answer before the grand jury in the sum of $250. Action will be taken upon his case in a few days.

GROUNDLESS CHARGE.—In the case of Wm. Hess, of Washington county, charged with committing an outrage on Annie Fuller, on trial in the state circuit court, the defense yesterday afternoon closely proved an alibi by quite a number of witnesses. On motion of District Attorney Caples, a verdict of not guilty was rendered.

INSPECTING THE ROAD.—Commissioner Pickernell of the government railroad bureau, accompanied by Capt. Blackstone, government engineer, arrived by the last steamer and proceeded at once over the line of the Northern Pacific. The object of their visit is to report the condition of the road.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION.—The regular quarterly teachers' examination will be held in the Park building on Monday and Tuesday, 26th and 27th inst., commencing at 9 o'clock each day. Teachers requiring certificates during the next quarter will please take notice.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.—Last night the Star Base Ball Club decided to play the "Clippers" of Oregon City, on condition that a series of games be played: the first in Portland, the second in Oregon City and a third, if necessary, on neutral grounds.

AT NINE O'CLOCK.—The railroad east of Bonneville having been repaired, trains will run on schedule time, beginning to-day. The Cascades boat will leave Ainsworth dock at nine o'clock this morning and regularly at that hour hereafter.

LAWN FESTIVAL.—At the prayer meeting at the First Congregational church, last evening, notice was given by the pastor of a lawn festival, to be given by the ladies of that society, on the Fourth of July, at the grounds of Mr. H. St. Northop.

DEDICATION.—The dedication of the church at Mt. Tabor will take place on Sunday the 25th inst. The dedicatory address will be pronounced by President Vat Scoy, of Willamette University. All are cordially invited to attend.

TRIAL TRIP.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ASTORIA, June 22.—U. S. N. Co.'s new steamer, General Miles, made her trial trip this morning to Tuwaco and back. It was a complete success. With 82 pounds of steam 90 revolutions per minute were made; 8½-foot propeller, 14 foot pitch. The steamer did more than was claimed by her builders, and with 100 pounds of steam will make 110 revolutions per minute.

THIRTY GRADUATES

TOOK LEAVE OF THE HIGH SCHOOL YESTERDAY.

Exercises at New Market Theater in the Afternoon and Evening—Address by Judge Deady, Etc., Etc.

Yesterday was the annual gala day of the Portland public schools. It has heretofore been the custom to crowd the class exercises all into one evening, a proceeding which has rendered the ever busy the inevitably tedious, or proven a source of disappointment to a number; the graduates, in that they have been unable to lend an active hand upon the programme. The exercises began according to announcement, at 2 o'clock, at New Market Theater, although at the earliest hour of the day a fine audience greeted the class, and during the intermission in which the public schools of our city is held, two. Finger, the honorable board of directors and city superintendent of schools, teachers of the high school and principals of the grammar schools, occupied seats upon the stage, while arranged in double rows the graduates sat in waiting expectancy, each coming forward promptly and gracefully in turn, and stand no under the class motto "Forsan et hæc olim meminisse juvabit," performed well the part assigned.

The exercises were opened with music, after which Miss Emma Hamilton gave welcome to the audience in well-chosen words.

Miss Helen B. Reidy discoursed of "Masques," in a very sweet manner, and Miss Jessie Anderson followed in tastefully worded "Legends." Miss Mary L. Hamilton chose for her theme "The River," picturesquing its waters with beautiful imagery. Miss Ella E. McBride spoke upon "Imagination" in a pleasing manner, and Miss Hannah M. Connell labored to prove that "There are no Alps" insofar as concerning the earnest pupil's path. "The Starry Heavens," by Miss Mary E. Reynolds, showed that this young lady's thoughts find a ready channel into words; dainty figures and excellent taste with proof. "Every Sea hath its Pirate," was the subject chosen by Miss Elizabeth Paxton, and many of her remarks made the hour were fully expressed. Miss Julia L. Bryan spoke understandingly upon the "Influence of Music."

Ralph W. Hoyt, by his clear and earnest delivery, proved himself imbued with "The Spirit of the Age." "The Rainbow" was drawn in beautiful colors by Miss Blanche Kahn. Miss Augusta Marsh all clothed "The Common-place" in such beautiful language that the matter presented seemed above the theme. Miss Lizzie M. Fenton in choosing "Steward" for her subject, chose well, giving herself ample opportunity to elaborate upon a familiar theme. Harlow W. Briggs, in "Yet Populi," found a fruitful subject, enlarging thereon in language that would be no discredit to older heads than his. Miss Fannie L. Dickenson had in "Plantation Scenes," the advantage of a subject new, as far as actual observation goes, to most of her hearers. "The Possibilities of Electricity," by Wm. H. Meeker, were imaginatively portrayed. "The Voices of the Obelisk," rang down through the centuries through that of Wm. K. Smith, holding closely the attention of the audience. The "Golden Rule of the Nineteenth Century," was the attractive subject of a very attractive essay, by Miss Susie Vetter.

The exercises of the afternoon were closed by "The First Grief," by Joseph P. Newell, presenting that interesting topic. The essays were short, occupying but a few minutes each in reading or delivery, and were in the main carefully written and well delivered. Maturity of thought is not expected in exercises of this nature, ideas prettily and gramatically expressed are about all that can be reasonably demanded, and judged by this standard the exercises of the afternoon may be noted as quite interesting.

The toilets of the young ladies were altogether too elaborate for such an occasion. Not a piece of school girl simplicity in dress was visible. Brocades, satins, laces, ruffles, flounces, panlers and jewelry may serve to enhance the attractions of a ball-room belle, but to say the least these things are unbecoming a school girl who still in her early teens has completed a long course of study in a public school.

Several other students were named to participate in the exercises of the afternoon; but on account of the too lengthy programme, the delivery of their productions was omitted. Following are their names and the subject chosen: Miss Emma H. Darr, "Discipline;" William J. Strobing, "responsibilities of Culture;" Jennie Depenning, "Harvest;" Charles F. Burrage, "Monopolies;" Drusilla Gore, "Amusements;" Lida J. Wilson, "Women of the Present Age;" Blanche Hampton, "Replies;" Mary N. Millard, "The Ideal;" May Lollee, "Mountains;" Hannah B. Hodge, "Queen Mothers."

Evening Exercises.

The theater was packed in its evening, every seat having been reserved and those who neglected this precaution were obliged to stand. Many were turned away from the door unable to obtain admission.

The salutatory, "Memory Sketches," by Miss Emma O. Hamilton, was a well written account of past pleasures and social joyous of the class during their years of study. The delivery of the essay was good and showed a careful culture of the voice.

The piano solo, "The Old Folks at Home," by Miss Dickinson, was well executed and a round of applause greeted her effort.

From the valedictorian, Fred G. Watkins, the audience were led to expect something differing from the usual style, by the very expressive title of the subject he had chosen, "Grit," and they were not disappointed. Mr. Watkins defined the word "grit" as all that is noble and great in courage, bravery and duty. In closing he referred to Portland as a city rising in the pathway of commerce, moulded and fashioned by men who were descendants of race noted for their indomitable energy and perseverance. The ideas expressed in this portion of the oration were strong, powerful, well conceived and skillfully elaborated upon, and brilliant figure of speech gave point and purpose to the whole. The chain of thought was of more than ordinary merit and the language in which it was couched well selected.

After a piano solo by Miss Lulu E. Biven, which was well rendered, Hon. Matthew P. Deady delivered the annual address to the graduating class.

At its close, John Wilson, Esq., chairman of the board of directors, presented the diplomas to the following graduates:

As each name was called, beautiful bouquets and floral designs were handed over the footlights and carried to the persons for whom they were intended by two little girls, who were kept busy by the lavish gifts of the friends of the graduates. There were flowers in profusion and no one was slighted, each young lady receiving more than she could possibly carry away. It was a charming sight as the flowers were piled upon the stage around the graduates and in their laps, and our reporter could not refrain from remarking: "What an excellent illustration: A bevy of beauty in a bower of blossoms."

All united in singing the class song, and at its close, the eighth annual commencement of the Portland high school was a thing of the past.

The present intention of the state officers is to canvass the vote on the returns of November, should the returns be all in time, the third Tuesday of August, Umatilla and Grant being the only ones that are still out.

The Oregon Pioneer Association has filed articles of incorporation in the county clerk's office of this state, with Nedomia Crawford, Joseph Watt, Jesse Cathis and F. N. Matthieu, as incorporators. Principal office at Salem, capital stock $5000.

The governor has appointed A. L. Rice, of East Portland, I. F. M. Butler, Monmouth, E. J. Crawford, Crawfordsville, C. H. Caldwell, Oregon City, J. Morgan, Salem, H. L. Benson, Portland, W. R. McClintock, Eugene City, and E. J. Daly, Selo, notaries public for the ensuing year.

The Nellie Boyd dramatic company arrived here Monday last and opened at Cosmopolitan Opera House the evening following with "Fanchon the Cricket," Miss Boyd assuming the title role. The house was fashionable, small, was an appreciative one, and all who attended acknowledged the merits of the company fully supported in the presentation of this charming little drama. Miss Boyd is an artiste of very considerable merit, and fully sustained her part above the average. Her second appearance last evening in "Forget me Not," was greeted with a much better house, and as she has friends the longer she remains in the city, I predict a splendid season for her this evening, the troupe will present "The Celebrated Case."

MARKET AND TRADE

Developments of the week past in the wheat market are not of sufficient importance to dwell on as it resulted in little or nothing done The old crop is practically exhausted and all speculation as to the opening value of the new The English market quotations tends lower and lower and the difference for prompt shipment drawing an offer at least two dollars per ton lower than a quotation a week ago so that in view of such a marked decline it is possible that valley wheat will range at $1 90 per cental and eastern Lasco lot at $1 45 rather than the old values then quoted for the opening of the season Advices ments These indications are very unwelcome but we would not be doing our patrons justice not to publish the tenor of the market abroad from whence and on what all our ideas of value are based

The week has seen one of promise to the husbandman as plenty of rain has fallen in the Willamette and root weather which is almost as beneficial as rain has been the rule for several days past all over cept of the mountains It is reported however that the crops in Umatilla county will not be as good as last year and there are indications of shriveled wheat in some parts already Perhaps a plentiful rain will yet come to ward off this danger The Willamette valley at the present writing seems assured of a good crop and the exports of the Columbia ought easily to reach 275 000 tons for the coming year.

FREIGHTS

Freights are yet nominal in this port, as it will be some two months before any of the various ships here will be needed for new wheat So far but little new tonnage is being directed towards the Columbia river, but very much is pointing to San Francisco, and it is calculated that many can be diverted this way, so soon as owners are fully impressed with the shortage of the present California crop. We, therefore, feel assured that low freights will be the rule from here this season rather than the exception but 50 shillings will likely be the figure around which the rally and the retreat will surge—over which bull and bear will horn and claw, and paw the ground in valorous protestation from now the bull, from his elevated perch, calls for 50 shillings, but his wily adversary has hewn all stuck firmly in the ground at 50 shillings which can for post sorrow him for fast anchorage to safe figures but the end is not yet.

WOOL

During the week the wool market has been very dull, and prices for all kinds are one to two cents lower than our last quotations, We hear of some non-resident buyers who will leave for San Francisco by next steamer, the quality of the wools now being received not being up to the quality required to fill their orders Some local buyers have orders for eastern account, but only for choicest kinds. This kind of wool sells readily, but inferior wools are hard to sell Shipment by rail from east of the mountains was resumed to-day, and receipts are expected to be large during the next two weeks From 250,000 to 300,000 pounds have been received during the week, a small proportion of which has been sold here, We quote 18 to 20 cents. Ready Money lots might sell for a trifle more

The Boston wool market of last week is reported to THE OREGONIAN by telegraph as follows The wool market has been quiet, although sales foot up a good average, Transactions for the week include 2,500,000 pounds of all grades and qualities A lot of 800,000 pounds of Valparaiso carpet has been taken by manufacturers and this leaves the market almost bare of carpet wools. New wool continues to be held at high figures There is a disposition on the part of both dealers and manufacturers to hold back. Sales of Ohio and Pennsylvania fleeces has been 40@44c, included fair and good average lots at 42@43c for X and XX, choice selections at 44c Michigan, Wisconsin and New Hampshire X fleeces have been sold at 39@40½c, unwashed wool in fair demand. Texas has been sold to the extent of 375 000 pounds at 29@33½c, mostly in range of 29@33½c Unwashed western fleeces has been selling at 26@28c for medium; and fine combing and delaine selections are 4@5c over this, prices nominally, 33@34c unwashed combing in full and prices of Kentucky nominally, 29@30c. California wool have been very quiet, at prices asked are above the views of buyers some small lots of spring has been sold at 26@28c, pulled wool in fair demand and has been selling at 45@46c for choice eastern and Maine and 28@42c for fair and good. Business in Australian Montevideo and Cape wools has been small at previous prices Sales of carpet wool include a large line of Valparaiso

SALMON

The salmon run is now good, and canneryman are selling all they can pack It is estimated by a competent authority that the pack for the season to date amounts to 220,000 cases and that the whole pack for the season will equal the product of last year—850,000 cases. It has been said that the canneryman will unite in breaking the law which prohibits fishing later than August 1st, but this will probably not be found necessary.

HOP GROWERS' ASSOCIATION

The Tacoma Ledger says "The hop growers of this valley are taking steps to form what shall be known as the 'Puyallup Hop Growers' Association' Saturday, the 8th day of this month, at 1 P M., at Puyallup, is the time and place chosen to effect the organization. One object of this organization is to raise funds that they may have the associated press hop dispatches for the months of August and September This will cost $50 per month By these dispatches the growers can know the status of the hop and hop market from day to day at a trifling cost to each at much less expense than the speculator, who receives his private dispatches from England daily The hop growers hope to realize well this year, as high as 15¼ cents having been offered for the coming crop Phillip Wolf of San Francisco, has his agent here who last week bought 30,000 pounds from J P Kincaid, and the same amount from A Gardella, for 15 cents per pound. The hops are looking well now many of them are to the top of the poles

THE ENGLISH WHEAT MARKET

The Mark Lane Express in its review of the British grain trade during the past week says The weather has been extremely unfavorable There are very small quantities of native produce to offer Prices were weaker Foreign bread stuffs are depressed and gradually weakening For flour there was a very quiet consumptive demand Maize was weaker, and occasionally 6d cheaper Oatgoes were quiet and drooping There were three fresh arrivals and seven were withdrawn, and three remaining were sold About twenty cargoes are due to arrive this week The sales of English wheat during the past week were 20,453 quarters, at 47s 5d against 313,202 quarters at 55s 9d during the corresponding period last year

Portland Produce Prices.

Flour remains unchanged in price There is a very good shipping demand and a large local trade Stocks on hand, of both standard brands and country grades are not very large Oats are quiet and firm The latest advices from San Francisco present a more favorable outlook. Prices there rule in buyers' favor We do not believe that any great quantity is held still here for shipment Barley is weaker Advices from San Francisco show a declining market and more anxiety on sellers part to make sales Baled timothy hay continues scarce and wanted Good clean loose hay will also find ready sale Cured meats are unchanged There is an increased demand for good Oregon country hams well trimmed Shoulders and bacon are a little quiet and sales are not made so readily as heretofore Lard is dull and 1c per pound lower, particularly There is little doing in dried apples and less in dried plums Dried fruit of all kinds is very dull sale Latest advices from San Francisco show great improvement in the hop market Sales of good and choice Oregon are reported there at from 25c to 30c per pound Prices have advanced accordingly here but small or no stocks are held for sale Butter is not arriving, so freely as last week and prices continue firm Cheese is over Onions are weaker and dull sale Old Oregon potatoes are little wanted Eggs have declined Last receipts during the past three days have been light, and that threw us a prospect of an [illegible] The market to-day a very firm [illegible] changed Receipts are very small Potatoes are dull There is little demand for shingles

San Francisco Freight Situation.

SAN FRANCISCO June 22—The grain market shows decided weakness all along the line prices of cash and options being steadily downward in tendency The market for ships is quiet But one or two exporters are operating at all and they are not particularly anxious for ships There is little disposition on the part of owners to charter at present rates several of the ships in port being, in fact, no higher figures than are current at this time and as new wheat will be on the market in a few weeks there is an incentive to hold back until that time Merchandise market is quiet.

Eastern Freight Situation.

NEW YORK June 21—The freight market has been rather more quiet the past few days partly owing to natural causes and partly to slow re ipt of freight by reason of the strike of the freight handlers at various railroad depots and as a consequence ships are delayed in loading However here will be two more departures this month viz the Glory of the Seas and Manuel Llanos Rates are quoted steady at last figures but contracts have been made for future delivery at a full dollar per ton less in order to head off any disposition that shippers might have to make contracts with railroad companies Tonnage is very plenty and both lines have more than they require and show a desire to get rid of some of it The Samaria has been withdrawn from one of the lines and goes to Sydney and negotiations are pending for the withdrawal of another ship from the regular line to take a full cargo of coal from Baltimore The Vigilant will load at Philadelphia The Bohemia has sailed for Baltimore with a full cargo of coal

Isthmus freights are dull To day's steamer had for San Francisco 1400 kegs nails 110 kegs horseshoes 313 pkgs iron 4050 bars muck iron 648 bars railroad iron also for China 1630 bales sheeting, and for Japan 80 cases milk

Models for Artists.

New York Tribune

A slight figure flitted in at the door of the Academy of Design the other day and disappeared into an inner room. She had a rosy face and bright eyes

"This is one of our models said the professor, rolling his eyes toward the door A great change has taken place in public opinion concerning the use of living models combined the professor will beg to talk You remember what an outcry against it People said it was scandalous Posing being a new thing it was hard to get a model of either sex The first class was got together and engagements are made weeks in advance

"What pay do they get?"

"When the life class was first established we had to pay $1 50 an hour now the regular price is fifty cents an hour Models pose from twelve to twenty hours a week They are changed every two weeks so as to give the students a change of subject Men are better models than women as they are less easily fatigued

"How long does the model stand without resting"

"An inexperienced one only twenty minutes at first Stand in one position five minutes without moving a muscle and you will get some idea of how fatiguing it is

"Do they show much embarrassment?

"So much that the muscles are as rigid as iron and they become drenched with perspiration But after posing two or three times the embarrassment wears off It becomes merely outline business

"Do many make it a profession

"There are several women who do nothing else They pose here at the academy at the art students league and in private studios Most of our female models are young women who work in shops, factories and factories They receive small wages and think it a great piece of fortune if they can earn $10 a week or $15 by posing They invariably give fictitious names.

"Some curious bits of romance have come under my observation the professor continued after a pause A pretty little brunette came to me one day and asked for an engagement She was in straitened circumstances but did not disclose her history She was so sweet tempered that she became a great favorite I have never seen any one so ambitious to earn money She would pose eight hours a day It made here grow pale with fatigue but she wouldn't give up Well it turned out that she was a married woman She belonged to a good family in New Jersey, and was a mere girl when she married a Japanese the son of an ex minister from Japan He squandered all his money was thriftless and earned nothing She had to keep him she free and lazy posed for artists in their studios A fairly dressed woman came in one morning and inquired for the model she said I was the model and she intended to make her the heiress to her property if she could be found After a two days search the model was found in a private hospital where she was posing for an artist and his wife This was the last I heard of the model

It is always the whip of necessity that drives people into posing One day a woman of refinement made an application She was handsomely dressed wearing a seal skin sacque and a silk dress Her face was pale and careworn and she said she had not had enough to eat Her story was that she had married well her husband having an income of $4000 a year When he died the fortune they possessed in a winge She said she had tried reciting and other methods of earning a living but she had not met with success Her figure had always been admired for its grace of outline Why should she not pose?

Do you have any boys for models?

One of the best subjects we have ever had was a young boy He had form like Apollo His father was a drunken town but her who was ruined by the panic of 18[illegible] This model whom I met in the street yesterday has now a responsible position as a bank clerk Out of our students posed last winter He was from Maine and had to depend entirely on his earnings This young man became one of the most prominent students in the academy All his of pe[illegible] prediction would never I am [illegible] One [illegible] would model be an itinerant Methodist preacher He has the form of a Hercules
